

Have Your Camera Licenses Expired?

Not with ViconNet!

Most open platform systems have a secret you won't hear much about.

Those licenses you purchase for each camera will expire, usually after a year, and they must be renewed. Consequences vary, from forfeiting all manufacturers' support to losing your camera's network connectivity.

ViconNet is different. There are never any licensing fees for connecting Vicon cameras to your ViconNet network, and each non-Vicon IP camera requires only a one-time licensing fee. Once your system is installed, neither you nor your cameras will ever be cut off.

Before investing in an open platform system, do the math. Not just for this year, but for the next, and the next, and the next. Only ViconNet provides you with the flexibility of open architecture and no recurring per-camera licensing fees.
